6 Tasks of a Coach

Leading the player: Who are these kids, really?

Coaching games: What is the coach's role on gamedays?

Managing the performance environment: What and who else influences the player's experience?

Leading the team: How do you get the team on the same page?

Coaching training: Did you prepare the players for the game?

Leadership: How do I bring this all together?

What is your vision and plan for your team?

Coaching Philosophy

What do you want to achieve and how are you going to achieve it? Have a clear understanding of who you are and what you want.

Style of Play

How do you want your players and team to perform? There are many factors that can influence this, such as: club culture, strengths and weaknesses of players and coaching philosophy.

Formation

How do you want to arrange your players based on numbers on the field? (examples: 1-1-2-1, 1-2-3-1, 1-3-4-1, 1-4-3-3)

Culture

What is the culture you want to create with in your team environment? Think of club, parents, players and coaches when defining your culture.

5 Elements of a Training Session

1. Organized: Is the activity organized the right way?
2. Game like: Is the activity game like?
3. Repetition: Are the players getting the repetitions needed?
4. Challenge: Is there enough challenge on the players?
5. Coaching: Do your coaching points reflect player behavior?

Developing a Training Session – The 5 Ws

When developing a training session use the 5 Ws to focus on what you want to accomplish

What: What is taking place on the field?

Who: Who are the primary players involved?

When: When exactly is this problem occurring on the field?

Where: Where on the field is happening?

Why: Why is this happening?

Training Session Self-Reflection Tool

Self-reflection is a key element to improving as coach and ultimately improving your team!

1. Did I accomplish my objective?
2. What did I do well?
3. What can be improved?
